

For immediate release
June 8, 2010

Press contact: Erin Foley
Marketing/PR Coordinator
(708) 458-7600, Ext. 252

Peace Students Present Global Showcase

Photo Caption: Peace sophomores in Global Studies – an interdisciplinary English and Social Studies course – presented a Global Showcase in the school’s media center on May 20. In teams, students researched various cultures from around the world. Because of their research, the Global Studies students were able to share a presentation and elements of their chosen cultures with Peace’s student body. From Greek wedding dances and Lithuanian folk tales to Thai Spirit houses and Tongan tattoos, the student population was exposed to a world of exotic cultures and an appreciation of global differences.

Peace sophomores (from left) Mallorie Kaput, Katie Foulk and Alicia Medina (Chicago – 60652) present information on the Massai people and their warrior culture during the school’s Global Showcase on May 20. During their presentation, they answered the question, “How do the Massai people communicate through the warrior competition?”

