

For immediate release
March 19, 2009

Press contact: Polly Rix
PR/marketing director
708.458.7600, Ext. 252

Grammar school students learn leadership at Queen of Peace

Queen of Peace High School welcomed 37 girls from area grammar schools to its annual leadership conference held Feb. 21.

Students from St. Mary-Riverside, St. Mary Star of the Sea, St. Mary of Czestochowa, Queen of Martyrs, St. Gall, St. Catherine and Oak Lawn-Hometown Middle schools attended the one-day workshop.

“These girls were selected because they are budding class leaders and are eager to develop their leadership skills,” said Ms. Rosemary Scanlan-Sexton, Queen of Peace director of recruitment. “At the Peace conference, they hone their listening, communication and goal-setting skills, focus on building self-esteem, confidence and empowering themselves and others, try their hand at public speaking, participate in team-building exercises, and discover how trust and influence can be used effectively.”

CUTLINE: Pictured are Peace seniors Annette Carreon, a St. Agnes of Bohemia School graduate, and Monica Murzydlo, a St. Jane de Chantal School graduate, leading younger girls through a communications web activity. Student leaders guided the leadership attendee through various activities during the conference.

#####