Peace Seniors Volunteer at Ronald McDonald House

Photo Caption:

Members of Queen of Peace High School’s senior class cooked brunch for 30 people living at the Ronald McDonald House near Advocate Hope Children’s Hospital on Nov. 21. As part of the Senior Service Project, each Peace senior homeroom will take turns cooking dinner or brunch at the House on a Saturday or Sunday.

“We all were extremely excited to help out the families and see the House,” senior Bobbi Benegas said. “Ronald McDonald House Charities is a wonderful organization to volunteer for.”

Designed in the theme of a “house in the woods”, the RMH near Hope is the fourth House in the Chicagoland area. Since 2008 – when the RMH opened its doors – more than 5,000 volunteer hours have been logged. The four Ronald McDonald Houses provide a “home away from home” to keep families together while their child is receiving medical treatment far from home. All of the meals served at each of the Houses are prepared by giving volunteers.
