Many professions represented at Queen of Peace Career Day

Queen of Peace High School students learned about various careers April 1 at the school's annual Career Day. Nearly 50 alumnae and community members participated in the one-day event in which speakers discuss their career choice and their educational backgrounds.

"We had quite a variety of professionals representing a broad range of careers from a food scientist to a college professor and nurses and doctors to an FBI special agent. So many people donated their time and expertise to help Peace students see the value in education and pursuing the career of their choice," said staff member Lesley Klauk, who helped organize the event.

Members of the Peace Art Club and school newspaper, Amity, also volunteered, creating personalized thank you gifts for the speakers.
